NORMAL SCHOOLS WILL GET INTO COURTS AT ONCE

All Phases to be Covered in Suit Thought to be the Better Action.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 4.—It was learned today on good authority that a suit to test all phases of the Normal School act is certain to be brought within the next few days. The suit will probably be filed by Auditor John J. Craig and will take up the constitutionality of the act, the right of the Legislature to create the commission, the right of the commission to erect buildings and to hire faculties.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 5.—That more than mere patronage is involved in the contention between the Normal School Commission and the State Board of Education is the right to elect a faculty and establish the new schools at Murray and Morehead was pointed out today by those interested in the tangle.

Assumption by the majority of the commission of the right to erect buildings and organize the schools would speedily commit the State irretrievably to the projects. The next General Assembly would be unable to act in the case, as there would already be a large investment and going schools. On the other hand, if the commission turns the sites and money over to the board, that body will do all it legitimately can to prevent the consummation of the plan adopted by the commission.

Another phase of the situation may develop if the commission is unwilling to accept the lands, buildings and contents at Morehead as worth $100,000. The site includes the old buildings of a little college and a campus estimated at from five to ten acres. This with other land is offered as the $100,000 required by law. According to members of the commission, citizens of Morehead have promised to raise the difference in cash should the commission decide the property is worth less than the amount named.

AIRPLANE MAKING FLIGHTS, LOUISA AND VICINITY

Lieut. John P. Wood, of New York, is in Louisa with his airplane, having flown here from Pennsylvania on Thursday of last week. He has been making a business of flying ever since he came out of service in this department of the army after the World war. He usually goes to Florida and does commercial flying during the winter and his summers are spent in the northeast in the same line of work. He has never had an accident. This fact is due more than anything else to his constant caution, and the use of the best materials obtainable for his machine.

Several persons here have availed themselves of this opportunity to get the thrilling experience of flying. On Wednesday he flew from Louisa to Blaine in fifteen minutes, landing in R. T. Berry's field near the town. Remaining there half an hour he made the return trip to Louisa in 14 or 15 minutes, making just one hour for the round trip, with half of the time spent at Blaine. The distance is 21 miles by the shortest road. As passengers he carried his brother North on Wood and Robert Dixon, Jr. This is the first time an airplane has visited Blaine and Mr. Wood was flown near enough to be seen by the people of that place.

On Monday Mr. Wood went to Wilkerson and found a good landing field in South Williamson. He arranged to take his machine there on Friday morning of this week and remain two days to do flying.

John is a great nephew of Mrs. F. T. D. Wallace, a nephew of Miss Hermia Northup and Mrs. J. M. Turner, and a grandson of Col. Jay H. Northup, who died in last month. He has visited his Louisa relatives frequently since early childhood. Therefore he is well known here.

Twenty-four were non-committal on the course they desired to be taken and sixteen said they preferred to leave the matter in its present status.

Craig May Bring Suit
Forty would not say how they would vote if the extra session is called.

Charles L. Dawson, Attorney General, said yesterday that another conference between Governor Morrow, Superintendent Colvin, Auditor Craig and himself will be held within a few days. "At this meeting," said Mr. Dawson, "it will be decided what action will be taken."

Mr. Colvin said yesterday that a lawsuit was unavoidable. It is said that the presence of Auditor Craig at these meetings is for the purpose of grooming him to bring the suit.

Boyd County Has Gas Well on Keyser Creek

A water-filled hole prevents an exact estimate as to the value of the gas well brought in by Sam J. DeBord near Keyser creek last week. When gas was first struck, it was estimated to be about 30,000 feet but indications are today that the well will reach the 500,000 level.

The well was brought in last week. Some oil too was struck, running about a barrel a day. The drillers left the job to get the necessary equipment for running the well and when they returned 1400 feet of water was on top of the oil and gas deposit.

DeBord said that the water is to be removed and that the drillers then will be able to determine the value of the well which has been named "DeBord No. 1."—Ashland Independent.

KENTUCKY FIFTH IN PLAGUE TOLL

Washington, Dec. 3.—Only Colorado, Tennessee, Virginia and California, in that order, had higher tuberculosis death rates than Kentucky in 1921, according to Census Bureau figures made public today. With 3,197 deaths from the disease during the year, Kentucky's tuberculosis death rate is 136.6 to every 100,000 of population, Indiana, with 2,752 deaths, had a rate of 89.7.

Statistics were available from only thirty-four States, in this area there were 88,000 tuberculosis deaths in 1921, a rate of 294. The Census Bureau estimates the total number of tuberculosis deaths in the entire country for the year at about 107,000, as compared with 122,000 of 1921.

In the States with large negro populations, the Bureau calculated the rates separately for whites and negroes. In this group, Kentucky showed the highest tuberculosis death rates for both the white and negro populations. Kentucky's white tuberculosis death rate for the year was 115.7 and the negro tuberculosis death rate 225.1.

In spite of Kentucky's showing for 1921, the figures show health conditions improving in the State. There were 3,705 tuberculosis deaths in 1921 and 3,382 in 1919, as against 3,197 last year.

Everette Moore, a Lawrence county man, indicted at Paintsville for willful murder, escaped from the county jail at that place Wednesday night and has not been captured. He went out through the door and it was locked after him. Evidently Moore had a key and let himself out. One theory is that he made a wooden key and let himself out. This, however, is not very probable.

Moore was indicted along with a number of other men in connection with the explosion in the Thekla mine in Johnson county last June. In which two men were killed and about $5000 damage done to machinery. The two men who lost their lives were Wm. Hylton, age 43, and C. W. Smith, 32, both of Morgan county. On account of delay of some material he returned home Friday morning and was helping with the work about the house when suddenly he complained of feeling very sick. He walked across the room, sat down on the bed and fell forward, dying instantly. His death was so sudden and unexpected that those with whom he had been talking only a short time before could not realize that it could have happened.

Mr. Huff was born June 15, 1861, at Paintsville, Ky. He was married to Alice Price, October 31, 1884, who with three sons and three daughters survive. He had been a faithful and consistent member of the Christian church for more than twenty-five years. He was also secretary and treasurer. He did much of the carpenter work on the new church built last year at this place, donating all his services.

He had lived in Louisa many years and was a good citizen, highly respected by all who knew him.

The funeral was held in the Christian church in Louisa at one o'clock Sunday afternoon, December 3. The sermon was preached by his pastor, H. S. Early who was assisted in the services by Dr. C. A. Slaughter, presiding elder of the M. E. Church South, and Rev. J. D. Brame of the Baptist church. Such a large number of friends attended that many could not be able to get inside the building.

Better, Stronger Citizenry Now Emerging Out of Work in United States.

The American Red Cross as an organization of better health has been its problem in the past. How it solved the task revealed in it in the nation's physical condition as brought out during the World War, and consequently applied its activities to correction of a vital chapter in the forthcoming annual report. It is a story of health, strength, and vitality, and a story of the Red Cross. In its public health service, in its instruction in hygiene and care of the sick, in its classes, first aid and first aid classes, and health centers, the American Red Cross is applying the lessons learned during the war and making for a better, stronger and healthier citizenry.

JUST FOLKS.

Why? From the cradle to the grave, is man's persistent cry.

"Why do we work?" and "Why do we live?"

Ever it's ringing in our ears.

With never a clear reply.

"What is the reason for our tears?"

"Sorrow is ours, but why?"

The great man questions day by day.

Even as you and I.

Many must work and few may play.

But nobody tells us why.

"Come" or "Go" says the mother fair.

To life's small son standing by.

And he flings back the words one question there.

With his retelling, peevish "Why?"

But whippers a word to all.

"Tell while the minutes fly."

And man replies as the years pass.

"I know that I must, but why?"

Why do we live and why do we die?

Why do we smile or why do we cry?

Ever we stand at life's window pane.

Seeking the reason why?

Yet still believe it is ordered so.

Though our joys in life are few.

Some day the purpose of life will be known.

And our God shall tell us why.

With a good high school building Louisa can take a long step forward in the cause of education. There is a distinctive demand here for such a school as could be maintained if we had the kind of plant that is so necessary to properly handle this work. A modern building is first of all well lighted, thoroughly ventilated and properly heated. To save the eyes and health of the children has come to be recognized as of prime importance. Attention to physical development through athletics also has become a part of the work in schools, colleges and universities. Louisa has gone along for many years with a tax rate of only 25c for school purposes. For some time a deficit has been accumulating from year to year, until the issue could no longer be dodged. The city has outgrown all such standards and costs as formerly prevailed. There is no economy in dragging behind in educational matters. No greater injustices can be done to children than to withhold educational advantages for the sake of saving a few dollars in taxes. It is the most expensive course that can be pursued. Come on. Let's do our duty by the children.

The Ford Coal Deal.
The Courier-Journal says:—If Henry Ford should buy 190,000 acres of good Kentucky coal land at $20,000,000 he would get his coal cheaply. He would pay a little above $100 an acre. Anyone "groundhogging" an acre of coal land nowadays soon would dig out more than $100 worth, and the "groundhog" miner can do hardly more than to scratch the surface of deposits.

Much cheap coal has been bought from original holders of land in Kentucky. A good deal was acquired not a great while ago by lumber men who bought timber, the land thrown in. If Henry Ford should buy 190,000 acres of coal, the timber or cut-over lands would be thrown in, inasmuch as the sale of the coal-bearing lands would be upon a basis of the value of the coal. He could protect the second-growth timber on his holdings and create a vast estate in timber. The mountain lands require nothing more than protection from fire to reforest themselves where denudation is not complete.

If the bulk of the Ford coal, in the event of the purchase, should go out of the State, to be used elsewhere as fuel or for other purposes, out of the State with it would go the possibility of Kentucky payrolls and Kentucky population which Kentucky needs.

This State, with approximately the area and resources of Pennsylvania, has a little above 2,000,000 population, low assessed values and small revenues, reflected in the unimproved condition of the State. Pennsylvania's population is about 7,000,000. Pennsylvania is a rich State.

Kentucky will not become a rich State by selling the raw products of farms and the raw products of mines. Inasmuch as raw products are sold population and payrolls will be kept down.

Tapping Kentucky coal lands with a railroad to haul the coal out of the State is a perfectly legitimate project. So is selling coal lands to be tapped and the coal delivered out of the State. But where the coal is burned the industry is conducted and the payroll is kept.

Tapping Kentucky coal lands is not development of Kentucky's wealth. It is tapping Kentucky's riches to develop other States; tapping Kentucky's wilderness to build cities outside of Kentucky.

If Henry Ford should acquire 190,000 acres of Kentucky coal land and use the coal in Kentucky, as fuel in the raw state or otherwise, the State would experience increased welfare.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 27.—Work of the State Board of Health under the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner Act in striving to improve the conditions under which children in Kentucky grow up, was endorsed by the Kentucky Conference of Social Work, made up of welfare and social service workers from all over the State, at the final session of its four-day annual meeting here last week, the resolution of endorsement carrying a recommendation that the next General Assembly appropriate funds to extend the work to every county in the State.

Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer, was re-elected president of the conference, and it was decided to hold its next annual conference next year here. Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, Dr. William Hutchins of Berea, Mrs. J. L. Arbaugh of Louisville, Mrs. Emil Tachau of Louisville, Mrs. E. L. Hutchison of Lexington, Miss May Stone of Hindman, Mrs. W. J. Hills of Paducah and R. C. Simmons of Covington; secretary, Miss Lily Warren of Louisville, and treasurer, David C. Liggett of Louisville.

THREE BUTLER COUNTY SONS ARE IN CONGRESS

Morgantown.—Butler county, Kentucky, will hold a unique position in the next Congress, for it was the boyhood home of three men who will sit in that body. As school boys, Senator John W. Harrell, of Oklahoma, and Congressman-elect Maurice H. Thatcher, of the Louisville district, lived within a hundred yards of each other, while Congressman-elect Everett B. Howard, of the first Oklahoma district, lived less than three miles away at Morgantown, the county seat. Howard and Harrell are cousins, and lived at each other's homes in childhood until they seemed like brothers. Thatcher was an intimate friend and the three were inseparable.

JUST A LITTLE FUN

"I lost a lot of money once."
"How come?"
"I proposed to a wealthy girl and she refused."

Mother.—Don't ask so many questions, Katie. Don't you know that curiosity once killed a cat?
Katie.—What did the cat want to know, mother?

Getting By.
Wife.—Henry, do you realize that you have forgotten that this is my birthday?

Husband.—Yes, dearie, I did forget it, and it's quite natural that I should. There really isn't anything about you to remind me that you are a day older than you were a year ago.

The Musician.
"I don't know why it is, but I'm breaking into song."
"If you'd ever get the key, you wouldn't have to break in."

The tramp rang the doctor's bell and asked the pretty young woman who opened the door if she would be so kind as to ask the doctor if he had a pair of old trousers he would kindly give away.
"I'm the doctor," said the smiling young woman, and the tramp all but fainted.

Would Never Kick.
Minister (talking with landlady).—And what do you think of the character of St. Pauli.

Landlady.—Ah, he was a good soul. Do you remember how he once said we should eat what's set before us and ask no questions for conscience's sake? I've often thought I'd have liked him for a boarder.

"Papa, what is a pedestrian?"
An individual, my son, that is always found in front of automobiles."

Pshaw.
A cook stove was the prize they gave. For shooting. This is strange; Although he tried all afternoon, He couldn't get the range.

Sorry She Spoke.
The man from New England just arrived in a Western city, went into a small office and asked if he could wire direct from there, and how long it would take.

The girl assistant cut him short with: "I am not here to answer silly questions." She looked foolish however, when she found herself compelled to wire the following:
"Arrived safe. Girls here ugly and bad-tempered."

Exceeding the Limit.—"Maud tells everything she knows."
"Yes, it wouldn't be so bad if she would stop there."—Judge.

All in a Lifetime.—Old Lady.—"Did you ever do a single day's work in your life?"
Old Hobo.—"Just about, laddy."
The American Legion Weekly.

Exercise Assured.—Doctor Friend—

"Now that you have a car, you mustn't neglect exercise."
Patient.—"Oh, I shan't be able to; it's a second-hand car."—London Opinion.

Single Holiness.—Tim—"How are you getting along at home while your wife's away?"
Jim—"Fine. I've reached the height of efficiency. I can put on my socks now from either end."—American Mutual Magazine.

A Detail Overlooked.—A pressure of 15 pounds on this wire bumper throws out the clutch, applies the brakes, cuts off the ignition and blows the horn.—From the Scientific American. It seems to do about everything except take charge of the body.—Detroit Motor News.

Friends Again.—An inquisitive old lady was always asking her minister questions. One day the persistent lady asked, "Mr. —, can you please tell me the difference between Cherubim and Seraphim?" The minister thought deeply for a minute or two and then quietly replied, "Well, they had a difference, madam, but they have made it up."—The Christian Advocate (New York).

The Right Answer.—A man who believed he knew all about parrots undertook to teach what he thought to be a young, naive bird to say "Hello!" in one lesson. Going up to the cage, he repeated that word in a clear voice for several minutes, the parrot paying little or no attention. At the final "Hello!" the bird opened one eye, gazed at the man, and snapt out, "Line's busy."—The Congregationalist (Boston).

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY for 1922

THEY tell about Jake going into the barn to light his lantern so he could go courtin'. The farmer next door kidded him: "I never used a lantern when I went courtin'," said the farmer, and Jake said: "No, of course not; an' look what you got." There's lots of Jakes out these days with their lanterns, when they ought to be out with their X-rays. What's the use of looking at when you can look in. Lantern marriages mean pretty faces and heads with no adornment but the hair. The only advantage of courtin' with a lantern is that you can blow it out, an' then—ah, happiness doesn't come from object to eye, but faith an' lasting love come from soul to soul, an' you don't need no lantern to see that.

Richard Lloyd Jones tells Us To Speed Up Safety.

EVER since the advent of the steam engine we have been speeding up, and while that speed has come with inestimable benefit, it has not come without its measure of attendant harm. When the legislature of New York was first asked to grant a franchise for eighteen miles of steam railroad, the right to build this first railroad was not granted without a bitter opposition, which contended that it would be unsafe because the engine would scare so many horses that an unwarranted toll of death would result.

The railroad came and those who opposed it were right in their death toll predictions. The engines did scare the horses. There were runaways, and what is worse, there were wrecks on the rails and an ever-increasing list of accidents have been recorded as the iron ribbed mileage multiplied.

But for all this we would not erase the railroads from our maps; we would not go back to the days when even a king would cry: "My kingdom for a horse."

The thrashing machine has cost many a thrasher an arm, but we would not go back to the days when we flayed grain on the floor.

Mill machinery and foundry furnaces take their human toll. But we cannot do without them.

We fly sky-high and all too often we read of a fallen flyer. It is the price we pay to learn how with safety to use the swifter way.

The auto brings its price in limb and life. We pay it and speed away.

We have been impatiently seeking speed. With the same impatience we must seek safety. The cost of speed has reached such alarming proportions that the "Safety First" slogan was born.

Observe, we did not cry "Cut it out" nor did we even plead to "Slow down." We do not want to slacken, much less to stop. On the contrary, we want to speed up. That is progress. But we must speed up safety.

The National Safety Council reports that the compiled figures of preventable accidents in 1920 show a death toll of as many people as live in the State of Nevada. In other words, in one year we wiped out by accident one whole State. That means that it is time to STOP something. It is not speed we should stop. We must stop recklessness.

The man-eating thrashing machine has gone out of fashion. But the tool at the auto wheel is busy. Fatalities from reckless auto driving average thirty deaths a day. We have speed laws, but they are defiantly disobeyed and the violators when arrested are too often dismissed with a modified reprimand or a petty fine.

To endanger the life of another is not a light or laughing matter.

We must adjust ourselves to the auto as the horse did to the team. We make the train run on schedule limit its speed on curves, slow down at the sign of caution and come to a full stop at the STOP signal. So must we make every auto driver do.

There is but one way to do it, and that is for every community to impose drastic penalty for every offender and for every community to promptly get rid of any officer that fails to arrest the offenders and every judge and magistrate that will not impose the full penalty of the crime.

It is a crime to take life, it is a crime to endanger life. Speed up safety. It is the duty of every town and county government to get indignantly busy on this all important job. We cannot spare our people in whole state-full lots.

Christmas Shopping in Huntington Means Better Selection

Why risk delays and possible disappointment by sending to some distant city for your gifts and run the risk of not receiving just what you expected, when Huntington is so near you that you can make the trip quickly and make personal selections from the ample and varied Holiday stocks carried by our large and progressive stores. There is a decided advantage in seeing the merchandise, making selections, and noting the wide variety offered.

It is perfectly right and proper to patronize your own local merchant if he has what you want. He helps support your local community; but if you must send elsewhere for your purchases why not have the satisfaction of making the selections in person in Huntington; or if you cannot come order by mail and the distance is so short that if the selection does not suit exactly you have time to exchange it without delay or inconvenience.

Huntington stores are noted for the variety of their merchandise and the values and prices at which reasonable merchandise is sold. Every line is represented and in inviting you to come to Huntington this year to do your shopping we do so knowing that no city large or small will offer you more complete satisfaction than will be found in Huntington.

Hotel reservations will be arranged for you by our organization if notified in time.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Robinson was in Huntington the latter part of the week.

We were very glad to have the Rev. Brame conduct the chapel exercises for us on Monday. He made a very interesting talk on the value of a high school education.

Last Tuesday the girls basketball squad selected Gladys Hawes as their captain.

Tuesday the first string basketball boys elected Foster Queen as their captain.

Tuesday Coach Dorsett appointed Burton Queen and John Cummings captains of the second and third teams respectively.

The second team is made up of Captain Queen, Land, Minner, Wilson, Woods, Radcliffe, Vaughan and Hays.

The third team consists of Captain Cummings, Sargent, Norton, Cheek, Burgess, Crutcher, Kiser, Phillips, Skaggs, Kimer and McDowell.

Captain Hawes, Cheap, Wilson, Norton, Kirk, Adams, Walters and Kinsler accompanied by Mrs. Dorsett will leave Friday morning for Paintsville where they are to play that night. They will return the following morning.

Captain Queen, Plummer, G. Carter, J. See, Wray, Campbell, Roberts, Marcum, will refrain with Coach Dorsett Friday morning for Paintsville where they will play that night. They will go on to Pikeville the following morning and play the Pikeville High School on Saturday night, returning here Sunday morning.

The practice has been so arranged that the first team of boys will have the third team to practice against on Tuesday afternoon and the second team on Thursday afternoon. This will be of great help to the first string as they will have different players to play against at various intervals.

In a game featured by the stellar guarding of Captain Hawes and Cheap Louisa High School girls dropped their first game of basketball of the season to the strong Catlettsburg five boys last Friday night 13 to 1.

The game was a close exhibition of basketball on the part of both teams. Catlettsburg managed to keep in the lead during the entire game but at no time in the first three quarters were they out of danger. The first half found Kennedy, Gate City's star, efficient in her usual form, getting two long shots and one free throw.

Wilson was partially responsible for the close score, as she showed her dash and drive on both offense and defense. The half ended 9 to 0.

The local girls came back strong in the last half forcing the visitors on defense a great part of the time. Hawes started the offense while Cheap and Wilson were able to work the ball well up the floor and secured several shots. It was only by hard guarding that Wheeler and Hatfield were able to withstand the driving offense of the Louisa girls in the last quarter of the game.

This is the last appearance of the local team on the home floor before holidays unless other games can be scheduled. The team plays at Paintsville, Ky., on Friday, 9, and Catlettsburg, 15.

Mont V. McCoy of Zebulon, Dies Very Suddenly.

Mont V. McCoy of Zebulon, died suddenly while seated at the supper table at his home Tuesday evening. Mr. McCoy had been in Pikeville the day before, visiting his son-in-law, Ferrell Johnson, who is in jail here suffering from wounds received in Saturday's tragedy in which he shot and killed James Charles near McCoy's home. The deceased was the son of John Riley McCoy. He was a man of fine physique and weighed more than 200 pounds. He was generally recognized as one of the county's very best citizens. ## New Hotel Here.

W. H. Campbell has been awarded the contract for the construction of the basement for the Pinson Hotel to be erected on the corner of Caroline and Main streets, and the work will be pushed to completion.

It is understood that the erection of the building will probably go to a Lexington construction company at a cost of approximately $100,000. The property on which this hotel will be built is a part of the W. J. Kepl lot on Main street and is on line with the proposed new C. & O. depot and the main business section of Pikeville. The site is a desirable one as it occupies the corner of two of the city's widest and most beautiful streets.

Contractor Campbell is playing a prominent part in the development of Pikeville. He was prominently connected with laying the sub-structure for the Hughes-Justice buildings and is at present excavating for the Paine-Williams buildings, as well as laying Caroline street.

KENTUCKY OIL NEWS.

Judge N. P. Howard, prominent oil operator of Lexington, who has extensive holdings in the eastern Kentucky field, is of the opinion that the price of oil will continue to decline instead of advance, so long as the producers keep drilling new wells and adding to the accumulated stocks.

Operators should cease drilling activities," said Judge Howard. "until the surplus stocks are in some measure reduced and then the price would advance in keeping with the demand.

As long as the oil is in nature's receptacles in the ground, operators should realize they do not have to pay tankage charges. So I say that it is better to hold the oil in the ground, like the tobacco men do their tobacco in the pool, waiting for the demand for their product to bring better prices. If this policy could be followed by the oil producers, it would not be long before they would be receiving here in Kentucky $4 a barrel, instead of around $2 for their oil," said Judge Howard.

The Big Five Petroleum Company has just completed a good well on the Lee Owens lease, near Elma, Johnson county. This is the initial well on this tract and is reported to be good for twenty barrels.

Crode oil runs from the eastern and southern Kentucky oil field for the week ending Nov. 25, as reported by the Cumberland Pipe Line Company, totaled $6,912.14 barrels, as compared with $2,381.74 for the previous week—an increase of approximately 1,500 barrels.

THE RED CROSS SUPPLEMENTS GOVERNMENT SERVICE BY MEETING THE PARTICULAR NEEDS OF THE INDIVIDUAL EX-SERVICE MAN. THIS WORK CANNOT GO ON UNLESS YOU SUPPORT IT WITH YOUR MEMBERSHIP DOLLAR. PAY UP TODAY

Washington, Dec. 5.—Expenditures totaling $9,730,872.47 for carrying through its program of services and relief during the fiscal year in the United States and overseas are authorized in the budget of the American Red Cross, effective July 1, 1922. This total is $2,735,975 less than the expenditures for the last fiscal year, when disbursements reached $12,475,847.69. It is announced at National Headquarters in a statement emphasizing the necessity of continued support of the organization by enrollment during the annual Roll Call, which is now being conducted.

This total for the budget is exclusive of the large financial operations of the 3,300 active Red Cross chapters, which, it is estimated, will more than double the total.

War Veterans Have First Call.

First call on Red Cross funds is for the disabled ex-service men, of whom 27,487 were receiving treatment from the Government on June 1 last. This work for veterans and their families in a wide variety of service that the Government is not authorized to render and for which it has neither funds nor facilities has the call on $3,030,692.90 during the current year, or about $366,000 more than was expended last year for soldier service.

Adding the funds disbursed in this humanitarian work of physical reconstruction following the World War by the chapters throughout the country will approximate a total for the current year approaching $10,000,000. This work, in the opinion of the Surgeon General's office, will not react its peak before 1926.

Through its Chapters the American Red Cross is equipped to find the individual ex-service man, help him in his problems and difficulties, provide immediately for his necessities, and open the way for him to the Government compensation and aid to which he is entitled. The extension of this work to the families of such men proves to them that the Red Cross has lost none of its sympathy nor will to service manifested in wartime. Similarly the service goes out to the men still in the Army and Navy, 11,087 of whom were under treatment in Government hospitals on June 1, 1922.

Greater Domestic Program.

This year—after five years of constructive effort during the war and after the armistice—brings with it a greater responsibility for domestic service to the American Red Cross.

The budget for foreign operations, however, totals $3,044,000, but of this amount $1,834,000 is for medical relief and hospital supplies for Russia, which is a part of the gift made by the American Red Cross in 1921 to the Russian famine relief work of the American Relief Administration program. The child health service in Europe continues, moreover, and $654,000 is appropriated for this work undertaken in 1920. Other items in the stringently diminished foreign program include $200,000 to support the League of Red Cross Societies, $22,000 for nurses' training schools instituted by the Red Cross abroad, and $600,000 for liquidation of the general Red Cross foreign relief program.

Prepared for Emergencies.

For disaster relief the Red Cross has set aside $750,000, and for emergency work in "Chapter work" $500,000 to be available for domestic, insular and foreign demands. This is more than $395,000 above last year's expenditures. For service and assistance to the 3,300 chapters and their branches $1,293,000 is provided by the National organization.

Other budget items of importance in the domestic program include $200,000 for assistance to other organizations and education institutions for training Red Cross nurses and workers; $100,000 for Roll Call assistance furnished to chapters; $100,000 for unforeseen contingencies.

Of the total budget less than $500,000 is allotted for management in the National organization. No cash estimate, of course, is possible to weigh the value of the service by volunteers in the chapters.

SENATOR HARRIS FAVORS SPECIAL NORMAL SESSION

Is Opposed to Morehead as Site For The New Normal School.

Senator Brig H. Harris, representing Boyd, Lawrence, Johnson and Martin counties in the upper house of the Kentucky legislature, today declared himself opposed to the selection of Morehead for the site of the eastern normal school and asserted he favors a special session of the legislature to repeal the school act.

In reply to an inquiry from a Louisville newspaper, Senator Harris, who fathered the bill for the new normals, sent the following telegram today:

"I favor a special session of the legislature as against judicial action, primarily because I believe it will save time in getting the school question properly settled. If court proceedings were resorted to it would be two years or more before it could be decided and would probably cost as much or more than a special legislative session.

"I do not approve of the location of the eastern school, feeling that the suspicion that trickery had something to do with it might reflect discredit on the established school.

"I believe a special session will be far better and I will vote to repeal the law and for the submission for passage of the same bill I originally introduced before it was amended. In the original bill the sites for the schools would have been selected by the state board of education.

Senator Harris said his original bill which was passed by both the senate and the house, only to be amended, called for the choosing of sites to be left to the state board of education. The amendment offered by Representative Jeter of Lincoln county provided for the creation of the commission of eight, three to be named by President Ballard and five by Speaker Thompson.—Independent.

Deadlocked Jury in Robbins Case Discharged

Jackson.—Unable to return a verdict, the jury which had been considering the case of Nicholas Robbins, charged with the murder of Mrs. Eillian Hawkins, was discharged by Special Judge Chester Bach. It is said that the jurors stood nine to three for acquittal. Mrs. Hawkins was struck and instantly killed by a stray bullet after church at Elkatawa, Ky., a few weeks ago when Robbins and Bruce Gabbard engaged in a pistol duel. Gabbard also is under indictment, charged with murder. Several other murder cases which were to be called Monday have been reassigned for a later date because of the absence of Floyd Byrd, attorney, called to Frankfort for a conference in regard to the Clayhole election cases.

ERECT MEMORIAL TO OUR SOLDIER DEAD AT MAMMOTH CAVE

Glasgow Kentucky Post Of American Legion Start
Unique Monument

In the rotunda of Mammoth Cave, Kentucky, visited by thousands each year, there has been erected a memorial to the American dead of the World war.

Within this monument raised by the living service men to the memory of their heroic departed, are placed the names of all American soldiers who gave their lives in the Great Cause.

The memorial was established and dedicated by the Barren County Post No. 23, American Legion of Glasgow, Ky., and the inscription reads:

IN MEMORY
OF OUR
FALLEN COMRADES
OF KENTUCKY
AND THE
OF THE WORLD WAR

The Barren County Post requests all Legionnaires who visit Mammoth Cave in the future to bring with them from their states or other countries, boulders or stones to pile on top of those already placed by the Kentucky Legionnaires about the memorial. Thus will rise, higher and higher each year, a monument made by the hands of former fighting men from every section of the country, and from foreign countries, in reverence for the buddies who went West.

The monument to the heroic dead will be tended with loving care by Legionnaires of Glasgow, Brent G. Nunnally, adjutant, Department of Kentucky, says, and will renew in the hearts of many thousands of visitors to Mammoth Cave each year, a reverence and a gratitude for the sacrifices of America's sons.

Within the famous cave another monument is being built by Legionnaires, one dedicated to the living, to the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary.

Returning from the National Convention of the American Legion at New Orleans, Minnesota and Pennsylvania members of the Legion and Auxiliary started it, each member placing a rock. Those who started the pile have requested that a permanent American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary marker be erected.

Gold Coins Favored as Christmas Gifts

Washington, Dec. 2.—The old custom of using gold coins for Christmas gifts, so strongly discouraged during the war, is no longer looked on with disfavor by the Treasury. Acting Governor Platt of the Federal Reserve board informed the reserve banks that the Treasury has withdrawn its objections to the release of gold for such purposes, and said the Reserve board invited a revival of the practice.

We understand No. 37 and No. 38 are soon to go to stopping at Gallup again. This will be a great advantage to our people as road conditions and backwater makes travel intolerable during the winter months, especially at night from Chapman.

Our roads are yet in good order, not so much wagon traffic since mills have left. We have done our part on road work and all who own cars have done quite a bit of extra work in "switch in time" jobs which is the only way to keep a road right anyway.

Old Mendel Goes to Rachel

By ERNEST LEVINE

There was really no reason why Old Mendel should continue at seventy-five to push his cart laden with cheap underwear along the streets of the East side. But the habits of a lifetime are difficult to eradicate, and Mendel had been doing it for thirty-five years.

He had come over from Poland in the prime of life, determined to make a fortune and then send for his wife, Rachel. They had been married ten years, and though they had no children, they had always been happy together, since they first became sweethearts as a boy and girl.

Mendel had not prospered at first. It had taken him two years in a sweatshop to save up enough money to acquire a pushcart, and then the saving up for the steamship fare was a slow process. At last, however, he was able to send the money.

A letter came back enclosing it. Rachel had died of typhus about the time Mendel was buying the draft on the Warsaw bank.

She had died, fancying that he was standing beside her bed, and that same night Mendel had had such a strange dream of her.

He had dreamed he was again in a strange house and holding Rachel's hand, and she had told him that she could not come over immediately, but that she would come soon and all would be well.

Old Mendel was dazed by the news. For a week he did something that he self-respecting Jew would think of doing; he got drunk. Then he was found in Hester street with his pushcart again.

Time passed. The neighbors who had pitied him, began to look askance at him. "Why doesn't Mendel get married again?" they asked. They knew he had a tidy sum put by.

Mendel did not marry again, and after a while he was accepted as a confirmed old widower. And he was growing old, so that the girls no longer looked at him. His hair whitened, he let his beard grow long.

Old Mendel had twelve thousand dollars in the bank. There was no reason why he should have continued to push his cart. But every day he was seen in the streets, calling his wares mechanically. Nobody bought of Mendel, for all his goods were out of style. They only said, "There goes Old Mendel!"

Old Mendel loved the streets, the swarming children, for whom he had a pat on the head, and sometimes a penny. He loved the sights and smells of the East side. It was his life. It was the life to which he had meant to bring Rachel. He often fancied that she was with him. Sometimes people would hear him muttering, but they did not know he was talking to her. They only said, "Old Mendel's getting queer."

The day was so bright and warm Old Mendel sat down on a doorstep, his pushcart standing in the road. The policeman, who knew Old Mendel, looked the other way when he saw that Old Mendel was sleeping. Gradually the hum of conversation, the roar of the traffic passed into a dull monotone, and Old Mendel dreamed.

It was so vivid a dream that he might have been living. He saw Rachel standing before him with outstretched arms and such a sweet smile on her face. And it was not Rachel as she would have been, not even as she had been when they kissed each other goodbye before he sailed, but Rachel as she was when he first courted her.

And the first thought that came to Old Mendel was, "I am too old. Why hasn't she changed in all these years?" But Rachel kissed him and said, "It's been a long waiting for you, my dear, but I've managed to come at last."

Mendel forgot that it was a dream. "God bless you, Rachel!" he said. "I'm going to take such a nice apartment for you—four rooms and a bath. And I've got twelve thousand saved up, so we can buy our furniture outright. But I dreamed you were dead, and I've been so unhappy."

"There's no such thing as death, my dear," she answered smilingly. "I've been walking up and down Hester street beside you for years, trying to talk to you, and sometimes you answered me, but you were never quite sure it was I."

Mendel remembered that he had fallen asleep. "Promise me that this isn't a dream!" he pleaded. "Have you really come back to me forever?"

"Forever and ever," answered Rachel softly, as she drew his head down to her breast.

The policeman, returning on his patrol, glanced at Mendel again. "The old man's having a long sleep," he thought. He crossed the road and touched him lightly on the shoulder.

"Hey, Mendel, wake up!" he said. "Time to go home for supper. It's mornin' leave your cart standing in the street."

But Mendel didn't wake up or answer him.

He Remembered.

The Japanese word for "good morning," sounds like "ohio."

A Japanese mentioned this fact to an American the other day.

"Ah," exclaimed the American, "that's easy to remember. It's the name of one of our states."

I was dizzy and my head ached to split. My feet and hands were cold and I was in bad shape during the whole year until for any kind of home-remedy. Everything I had heard of failed me. I had about Deans' Kidney Pills and sent to the Louisa Drug Store for a box. After using them, I got rid of the trouble. I am only too glad to recommend Deans' Pills to all who suffer. You Folks Who Don't Own Cars Can "Square Accounts"

How often, as you stepped out of your good friends' cars, have you thanked them and thought at the same time:

"My, how I wish I could return this favor!"

Many times during the year, no doubt, you have been indebted for a ride to the office, or home, or to town on a social or lodge gathering. And you appreciated this kindness—of course you did!

But here's a suggestion: Remember Old kind friend, or friends, with a practical, and not necessarily expensive gift in the shape of "something for the car."

There are lots of things that don't cost much, but which time after time the next year will bring to his memory your thoughtfulness.

Take for instance a pair of good pliers—pocket size if he happens to have the heavy duty kind.

Or a tire gauge—even if he has one a "spare" never comes amiss.

Or that clever little Westinghouse gauge which causes electric sparks to take an orange-colored dash through it so that the car owner knows whether the spark plugs are behaving properly and just where and what are the electric troubles he's been having. (Just $1.50 buys this neat little gauge, and it's dollars to doughnuts your friend hasn't seen and tried one of them yet himself.)

There are many such items of automobile equipment that will please the car owner immensely.

If you are not sure, we will be pleased to help you make a selection—give you the honest advice and assistance of specialists in serving motorists.

"Dad's" Gift This Christmas -- "Something for the Car"

He isn't hard to please, is "Dad," never was, in fact. Maybe that's one reason why he got so many ties, cravats, socks, wafters, clippers, or what not. And he usually appeared both surprised and delighted.

But this year why not give him a sure-fire pleasure gift in the shape of "something for the car?" He isn't half as much interested in anything else, chances are, as he is in the automobile.

How do you think if he had about a pair of his warm motorist flares, the kind that keep you cozy, warm, limber, and workmanlike that'll mean almost unlimited years?

Or a clear lighter which fits neatly in the dash and gives a che

LIVE STOCK AND
POULTRY RAISINGBE CAREFUL IN FEEDING
DISHWATER TO HOGS

Dishwater may be a good feed for hogs, and it may not. If it contains a great deal of salt or soap, it is likely not to be. Some salt is good for hogs, but an excess may be poisonous. So may an excess of the alkalies in soap. Pigs especially may be poisoned by the feeding of too much soapy or salty dishwater. A lot of the stuff put in kitchen slops on most farms has no nutritive value. It is better to separate the waste food, etc., that has a feeding value from the greasy and soapy dishwater and throw the latter away.

APPLY LIME IN FALL AND WINTER

Probably fall and winter is as good a time to apply ground limestone to land as any other time and it certainly is the most convenient time. Liming is a rather laborious operation and where it is put off until the busy season, the operation will certainly interfere seriously with the usual farm operations. There is no disadvantage in applying lime to land some time before the crop that it is expected the lime will benefit is planted. In fact, it is probably an advantage, as a better distribution is secured.

WATER-SLAKED LIME.

I have some lime that was slaked by rain. The much should I use per acre in liming land?

The lime you have in its present state would be called hydrated or water-slaked lime and you would need to put a ton and a half or more to the acre to insure full results.—Southern Agriculturist.

Six-Legged Sheep
is Sold For $600

Richmond, Ky., Dec. 5.—A six-legged sheep raised at the farm of Piaz Brothers in this county, near Red House, was sold in Cincinnati for $600 the week being purchased by T. P. Ross & Company, of Sumter, S. C. It is understood that the strange youngster will go to a circus. The animal walked on five of its legs, the extra one that was of service being attached in front. The sixth leg does not quite touch the ground when the sheep stands on its other five legs.

MARKET INFORMATION.

The successful farmer keeps in close touch with market conditions. He pays attention to market prices and to reports of production and receipts on markets. Doing so, helps him plan his farming and also helps him in selling his products so as to get the best results. Of course, weather and so many other things have an effect on production that no one can predict exactly for long periods in advance what the market conditions are going to be. This makes it necessary to keep informed regarding the markets all the time. Products should be graded carefully before they are sold. If products are bought and sold on the basis of grade, the man who has good quality products is rewarded and his efforts to market products in proper condition are encouraged. If the same price is paid for all eggs whether their quality is good or poor, there will be no encouragement for the farmer to deliver eggs of high quality. The same is true of cream and of other farm products.

Walter L. Ferguson Entertains Class

Walter L. Ferguson was host to a party given Wednesday evening at his home 230 Fifth avenue, Huntington, W. Va., for the mid-year class of the Huntington high school. The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, the class colors being used as the color scheme. One feature was the table on which was placed a huge pumpkin containing turkey favors filled with candy. To each favor was attached a ribbon (in the class colors) by means of which each guest drew their favors. An enjoyable evening was spent in conversation and music being the diversion. Several interesting contests were worked out. The first, a "musical romance," with Mrs. Richard Gorrell at the piano and Mrs. W. J. Norman as director of the games. "The Dear Little Goose," "Punch and Judy," and "The Goose," were the titles of the games. The evening, Miss Helen Alexander presiding at the punch table. A delicious salad course was served. The host was assisted by his mother, Mrs. W. L. Ferguson. Those present were: Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Gibson, Mrs. E. A. Johnson, Mrs. H. R. Alexander, Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Miss Helen Alexander, Misses Anna Harris, Charlene Morgan, Bertha Sontar, Celia Beckett, Stella Rowley, Lois Pichard, Marie Massey, Mildred Gilpin, Carrie Sanson, Gertie Sanson, Ruth Sumter, Bernice Wright, Mrs. Harland Johnson, Robert Hyatt, Leonard Wellington, Eber Bowles, Harold Dispatch.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Under this heading each week we will publish a few recipes. Send in your favorite one. By saving those from each issue of the paper you can soon make a good cook book.

Oatmeal Cookies.
Place in mixing bowl one cup of brown sugar, one-half cup of butter or other good shortening, yolks of two eggs, two cups of flour, two cups of rolled oats, one-half cup of finely chopped nuts, one cup of finely chopped raisins, one-half teaspoon each of cinnamon and nutmeg, one half cup of water.
Mix well and drop on well-greased baking sheet, using a teaspoon, and place the cookies two inches apart. Bake in moderate oven for ten minutes. Remove from the baking sheet while warm, using a spatula to take the cookies from the pans.

THE ONLY GRIEF THAT MATTERS

There were four of us in the smoking car airing our petty woes. And the air was filled with the loud complaint which often a Pullman knows:
One fellow spoke of his money loss and he cursed and swore.
The friend who had sold him the worthless stock, and he called him "liar" and "cheat."

We vie as whippersnappers often do to lead with our tale of woe.
We trotted our troubles up and down, each singing a doleful song.
One had sat in a dentist's chair and to listen to him complain.
You'd have thought that the joy of earth was killed by the minute or two of pain.

I was as bad as the other three. I answered them none for none. Trouble had captured and collared me and useless it seemed to hope. The gloom was thick in that stuffy car, as thick as the clouds of smoke.
Till the last of us told our tale of woe—then a man in the corner spoke.

"Gentlemen, I have heard you all and your pitiful stories thru.
And I tell you now that I'd sing for joy to be troubled the same as you.
I'd never frown and I'd never whine, or speak in the way you speak.
But I've been hit where it really hurts—I buried my wife last week!"

And now whenever I hear men growl at some trivial loss they're met. And tell their troubles and curse the world and grumble and whine and fret.
I tell them the tale of the silent man, with the pale and careworn cheek. The man—and even he's sitting near—who buried his wife last week.

THE VILLAGE WEEKLY

At last the floundering carrier bore The village paper to our door. Let broadening outdoors as we read To warmer zones the horizon spread. In panoramic length unrolled We saw the marvels that it told. Welcome to us its week-old Muse, Its monthly gauge of snow and rain, Its record mingling in a breath The wedding-knell and dirge of death. Jest, anecdote, and love-lorn tale, The latest culprit sent to jail; Its hue and cry of stolen and lost, Its endue sales and goods at cost, And traffic calling loud for grain, We felt the stir of hell and street. The pulse of life that round us beat, The chill embargo of the snow Was melted in the genial glow; Wide swung again our ice-locked door And all the world was ours once more.
—From Whittier's "Snowbound."

FOR CHRISTMAS.

Individual fruit jars, tiny jars of preserves, jelly or marmalade, are gifts which will carry with them more than all else the individuality of the home maker. They may be packed in Christmas boxes, tied in tissue and surrounded with a sprig of holly or be wrapped with an embroidered napkin.

The Point of View

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I do wish you wouldn't keep interrupting me, Daisy," said the popular author. "Here I've got to complete this story by twelve o'clock and I can't think of a thing to write about."

"Oh, well, you needn't be so snappy," answered the popular author's pretty young wife. "I'm sure I don't want to trespass upon your valuable time."

She went out and slammed the door. Fumed with desperation, the popular author leaped at his typewriter and began:

"It was all over. Their six months of married life had shown each one, clearly, that they were mismatched. Eric had done everything in his power to conciliate the beautiful creature to whom he had devoted his life, but all was in vain."

"Sometimes, indeed, he wondered if she could possibly be the woman he had loved so blindly, so devotedly, with such consuming passion."

"Was it really consuming passion?" the popular author demanded of his machine. "Was it not just infatuation?"

And what was going to happen next? He must bring in a third man somehow. But who? How? Where? The popular author's fingers fell from the keys. The plot refused to come.

He looked up angrily as the door opened.

"I'm sure I don't wish to be a nuisance to you, Eric," said Daisy. "But, unless you're prepared to go without meat for supper, somebody's got to go to the butcher's. I can't, unless you want the pie to be scorched."

"Don't the butcher?" said Eric violently.

"Well, that's the fault," answered Daisy. "That's the first time you've sworn at me, you monster!"

"I didn't swear at you, I swore at the butcher!"

"Oh, yes, you may have some parrot of about feeding left in you, but it isn't enough for me. I'm going home to mother, and you can let your old pipe learn," sobbed Daisy, giving the door one of those peculiar slams that impart the greatest amount of sound and vibration and the minimum of damage.

The popular author grunted his teeth and leaped at his typewriter again.

"With such consuming passion," she had turned into a flood, a slave-driver. She had no consideration for his work at all. And now she was going home to her mother!

"He knew that he was glad. He had grown tired of her. Her presence drove him mad. He loved her no longer."

Was there another man? He was sure of it. He knew that she was pulling the wool over his eyes, but he laughed inwardly. Let her go—let her go forever.

She came into the room. "Have you anything to say to me, monster, before we part for all time?" she demanded.

"Only that I'll be glad to see the last of you," he answered. "Don't trouble to come back. I'm sailing for Paris tomorrow."

"What are you going to do in Paris?" she queried insistently.

"Forget that you ever existed in the smiles of the beauties of the Gay City," he replied.

"Wretch, that insult constitutes the last word!" she cried, and slammed the door. It was one of those peculiar slams that impart the greatest amount of sound and vibration.

The door opened. Daisy came softly in and glided up to the popular author's desk.

"I've telephoned for the meat from Mrs. Higginson's," she said, "and—Pm sorry, dearest, I know I have been horrid to you, but I got so nervous with the housework. Won't you forgive me?"

The popular author turned from his machine. He caught Daisy in his arms and set her down on his knee. They kissed each other. They were very happy.

"I suppose I'll have to go or the pie will burn," said Daisy. "But we mustn't have any more quarrels, must we, darling?"

"Never again," answered the popular author.

"How are you getting on with your story, darling?"

"Oh, fairly well," the popular author answered. "I've just got to change the end a little."

When the door had closed softly behind her the popular author leaped like a demon at the typewriter.

"Forget that you ever existed in the smiles of the beauties of the Gay City," he replied.

She sank, half swooning, at his feet. "Oh, I can't bear it," she pleaded. "Forgive me, and I'll never make you angry again. Take me back, or I shall die!"

He raised her in his arms and put her down on his knee. "Darling, I was only speaking in bitterness," he answered. "There never was anybody but you."

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

A COLUMN DEDICATED TO TIRED MOTHERS AS THEY JOIN THE HOME CIRCLE AT EVENING TIDE.

What Have We Done Today?

We shall do so much in the years to come.

But what have we done today? We shall give our gold in a princely sum.

But what did we give today? We shall lift the heart and dry the tear.

We shall plant a hope in the place of fear.

We shall speak the words of love and cheer.

But what did we speak today?

We shall be so kind in the after-while.

But what have we been today? We shall bring to each lonely life a smile.

But what have we brought today? We shall give to truth a grander birth.

And to steadfast faith a deeper worth.

We shall feed the hungry souls of earth.

But whom have we fed today?

We shall reap such joys in the by and by.

But what have we sown today? We shall build us mansions in the sky.

But what have we built today? This sweet in idle dreams to back.

But here and now do we our task? Yes, this the thing our souls must ask.

"What have we done today?"
—Nixon Waterman.

There is no earthly tie so strong or so sacred as that of motherhood. Society is held together by social ties, civic societies are bound by money and oaths. These obligations are like circles of steel, yet none hold like the marriage bond when inviolated and unimpugned by the vile theories.

There is only a villainous abandonment in the doctrine that leads a creature called by courtesy a man, to announce that a transfer of his affections warrants a breach of loyalty and desertion of one who has become his wife and the mother of his children.

No rules of propriety can cover such a principle, no chain of poetry gild so hateful a treason, and the breath of perfidy is on the lips of all such as advocate anything else than loyalty to wifehood and motherhood.

It is the mothers who lead the world in peace. They are the balance wheels of the universe. They hold the center of power by contrasting the affections of men. The hand that rocks the cradle has controlled of armies.

Marie Theresa quelled the tumult of a mighty army in Austria by raising her fair hand, and we are told that all was hushed to silence, as in clear, sweet tones she spoke.

The bravest battles that ever were fought, have been fought by the mothers of men.

Henry Ward Beecher once said, "I think I am more grateful to God for mother and sisters of the substantial integrity, purity and nobility of womanhood, than for almost anything else in this world. After a long life I can say that I have not lost faith in woman. The longer I live the more chivalric is my regard for them. I should look upon it as a fatal cancer in my soul if I fell from my confidence in the general trustworthiness, honesty, honor and charity of womanhood."

The reformer, when I hear young men cast gross aspersions on the character of women, I feel as if I were in a den of hissing serpents.

Parents often say, "I live for my children." They should do more than that—they should live with their children, letting their boys and girls feel that their interests are their parents' interests also.

Many of our young people have plenty of knowledge but they lack wisdom. As Cawper said, "Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much; wisdom is humble that he knows so little."

We do not need an introduction to a great man to feel his greatness. If you meet a cheerful man on the street on a cold day, you seem to feel the mercury rise several degrees.

Let the children have a good time—childhood does not last long. Age is incapable of the fine enthusiasm of youth.

A man thinks he knows it all, until a woman begins to enlighten him.

It is easier to keep a friend than to recover him when lost.

Consider that your visitors come to see you and not your pantry.

When the door had closed softly behind her the popular author leaped like a demon at the typewriter.

"Forget that you ever existed in the smiles of the beauties of the Gay City," he replied.

She sank, half swooning, at his feet. "Oh, I can't bear it," she pleaded. "Forgive me, and I'll never make you angry again. Take me back, or I shall die!"

He raised her in his arms and put her down on his knee. "Darling, I was only speaking in bitterness," he answered. "There never was anybody but you."

John and Eleanor's Dream

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Their dream had come true at last. John and Eleanor looked at each other with startled eyes, as if unable to believe it. After two years of city life—an apartment, modest, but in quite a nice district—they had their country cottage.

The cottage they had always dreamed of. It was John who had found it. It was a little, old-fashioned place with about half an acre of garden, just within the commuting region, yet untouched by modernity. There was not even a bathroom when they rented it. John had had that put in. The whole thing had been a surprise to Eleanor.

She stood among the hollyhocks with shining eyes. "It seems too good to be true," she said. "The dearest place! John, won't we be happy?"

They were. Eleanor revelled in her garden. John mowed the lawn in the evenings. They had no cars, no one to bother them. In the evenings Eleanor sewed or read, while John, when he was not detained at the office, as frequently happened, went through his accounts and correspondence.

"We'll save all the expenses of a holiday now, dearest," said John. "I shall simply knock off work for a couple of weeks and stay here with you."

That event happened a few weeks after they had moved in. It was the latter part of August, scorching hot; John sat in his shirt-sleeves all day under the big maple, going through letters and wishing that he had his stenographer with him.

"John, dearest," said Eleanor, bending over him, "don't you think you ought to get a little exercise now that you're free?"

"I've thought of that," answered John, smoothing down his waistcoat. "Trouble is, there are no golf links anywhere for miles around. I wish some one would start some."

"But, dearest, how about those nice country walks we planned?"

"Nothing against 'em," answered John, "except that we've worn out the country."

"Worn it out?" queried Eleanor. "Yep, that's what I said," John answered briskly. "We know all the roads 'round here. We know Farmer Giles' black cow and Farmer Hendrick's blue one. We know the pretty cottage with the jasmine and honeysuckle at the bend of the road. We know—Oh, everything that's knowable, including Mrs. Miller's blue-eyed kid that makes faces at us."

"Oh, I know, I know," said Eleanor miserably. John was getting tired of their dream, that was the trouble. That was why he brought all his work home. John was mooping.

"The clear, starry skies, the wonder of the dawn, the sound of singing birds, the music in each rill of water—these were not for John. Eleanor would be glad, for John's sake, when his holiday came to an end.

Something seemed to be coming between them that autumn. The old, sweet confidence seemed gone. Sometimes Eleanor would detect her husband sitting in his chair, staring moodily at her. At such times her heart would beat faster, and she would wonder:

"Can there be any one else?"

One night she could bear it no longer. "John, won't you tell me what has come between us of late?" she begged. "Is there—is there some one else?"

John kissed her sadly. "No, darling, just business troubles," he answered. Could she believe him? Eleanor looked at him doubtfully. After that the shadow that had fallen between them grew blacker and blacker.

"Dear, what'd you say to a little jaunt to town this evening?" John asked, "just to keep in touch with things. We mustn't become back numbers, even if we do live in the country, must we?"

Eleanor agreed without enthusiasm. The spell of country life had taken hold of her. But for John's sake—

It was strange being at the theater again. They watched each other, each afraid of seeming too appreciative. They dined at a fashionable restaurant.

"It is nice in a way, isn't it, Eleanor?" said John. "But it doesn't come up to the glories of sunset and dawn, and the hum of the tree-toads, does it?"

"N-no," said Eleanor. She was so absorbed in her thoughts that she did not realize where they were going until John helped her out of the taxi.

She stared about her. "Why, its our old apartment house!" she exclaimed. Without a word John led the way into their old apartment on the ground floor. Eleanor gasped. It was all furnished—ready for occupancy. She looked at her husband, and a sudden light came to her.

"Oh, darling!" she cried. "Did I guess right?"

"You did. But—but—"

"We'll have our things sent out this week, old oaken bucket and all. I'll attend to it. 'You'll stay right here. This is where our real life begins.'"

Double Play.

Twins having arrived, the father told little Peter that he needn't go to school that day.

Little Peter—But wouldn't it be just as good to tell teacher tomorrow I've got one new little brother, and next week stay home again and then tell her I've got one more?

Richard Lloyd Jones tells

About The Light Maker

WE were groping our way across the street intersection which was hidden in the pitch blackness of a moonless midnight when we were startled by the rattle of the dead arc-lamp above us. Then we heard the creak of the pulley that held it and we knew that somewhere close to us in that dark stillness was a man feeding out the rope to lower the lamp to the street level. We waited and watched. Presently a flash lamp was laid on the ground and revealed the lame lamp and its doctor. By the dim reflection we saw him place a platform which he presently mounted and then went to work.

Walking toward him we announced our approach by the inquiry, "I suppose that step you are standing on is insulated?"

"Yes," he replied.

"With glass knobs?" we observed, by way of making conversation to glean a morsel of electrical information.

"Stand back a little," he said, "the wind might sweep the lamp over to you, and you're on the ground."

"I suppose you're perfectly safe on your platform?" was our next feeler.

"Safe as long as I use but one hand at a time," he said. "By using two hands I can easily make a short circuit through my body."

"That would kill you of course?" we added knowingly.

"Maybe not," he replied.

"Isn't the instant shock that kills but the continued shock. The current shocks the blood cells. If enough of the blood cells become so cooked that the other cells cannot cure them, you die. But if most of your blood cells are left normal you will live. I short-circuited a current that was three times the voltage here. It was so great that instead of holding me it repelled me; it threw me to the ground. I was unconscious many hours. But as you see, I was not killed. The burning process did not last long enough."

"Does this street meet with Jenner down there?" he said, pointing to an arc a block below. "I am not much acquainted about this district. I am a student. Good night," he said, and he was off to lighten up the dark highways of men.

We didn't learn much about electricity in that curb talk in the midnight hour, but we learned again the scholar's duty.

He is a wasteful student who does not use that which he knows for the benefit of other men. It is the scholar who serves, and who justifies the universities of the world. The man who finds in culture only a source of self-gratification, who is contented with the mere possession of culture, who is not impatient to use it, who is unwilling to take the risk of getting short-circuited in the currents of life that he might while he lives do his part to light up the dark avenues of the world, is not living true to the highest purposes of life. He serves a high service who goes about alone, cautious, but fearless, spreading light in this still dark and troubled world, and giving it without the applause of those who profit by it and who never see the good deed done.

Along the dark and silent pathway in that midnight hour that student was putting into practice the highest preachment in life. Willingness to do some good unseen, some good that brightens the pathway of others is the soldier's service open to all.

If each of us would mend a lamp or light a lamp, risk a little to do a little for the common good, this old world would fast grow better and seem much brighter.

poem by UNCLE JOHN

If it wasn't for expenses which is certain to accrue, I wouldn't mind the problems of existence like I do. . . . I allers favored incomes, an' I've spoke in their defense, but you can't produce an argymint in favor of expense!

I gather in my wages, when the same is duly earn't, and lay aside a stipend for the gasoline I've burn't,—I figger on a surplus to retain fer saltin' down, but she never lasts a minnit, when I mosey off to town!

To jugulate expenses is the climax of my will, when I go against a blowout with a seven dollar bill,—but a double-header hits me whar the chicken got the axe, an' she sweeps away my surplus like a corporation tax!

I never knowed a failure that disbursements didn't cause; there's a world of forked lightning in our economic laws—and I'll give the feller credit fer a wagon-load of sense, that invents a safety income, which is bigger than expense!
